Solely a Matter of Fish and Fowl.

Alabama's game and fish commissioner is more or less widely recognized as something of a unique character, whether he be viewed in the light of activities to induce outside newspapers to locate in Alabama towns, as a busy politician preparing carbon copies of resolutions to be passed with a whoop by hand-me-down, job-lot mass meetings, or as an ardent friend and protector of the game and fish species.

In the latter capacity he may fairly be regarded as a conspicuous figure, notably when he appears before the legislative investigating committee and defends the charging of $40 worth of telegrams against the state on the ground that they were sent to other friends of fish and fowl to use their influence with the legislature not to abolish the game and fish department and leave the state's fish and fowl without due protection.

The commissioner declared to the committee that he regarded this a legitimate charge because it was spent in efforts to protect the birds and wild life of Alabama.

In view of his activities on behalf of Alabama's fish and fowl, doubtless few will question the commissioner's sincerity of purpose in this transaction. It was natural that he should know a deal more about the needs of the state's fish and fowl and the importance of their protection than should any would-be citizen who has nothing to do with his business but pay the costs. And it is hardly to be expected that any one will question his judgment or his motive in using the hunter's money to prevent the citizen from making the fatal mistake of paralyzing the protective hand of the fish and game department together with the job and "per" of its persisting genius. Hence the expenditure and the charge off accordingly.

Let no one suspect the game and fish commissioner of aught but wholly unselfish purposes in this little cost to the state through its tax-payers. When an official is engaged in a momentous and patriotic service, how could he be expected to bother himself about such details as drawing the line of distinction between what is public and private business? The great point for the taxpayer to digest is that the fish and game of the state need no protection and should get it in full measure; that the people should be made to pay the costs of the game and fish law-makers.

sibly become involved in the transaction.

It's true that what is fish for some may be fowl for others. But the commissioners in this testimony before the legislative committee made it plain that he is for both fish and fowl first, last and all the time. He simply resorted to a perfectly proper and altogether patriotic means of securing the people's co-operation through the people's funds—Birmingham Ledger.

The Anti-Chipping Decision.

The Supreme Court's decision upholding the Bonner anti-chipping law, is another victory for that fanatical "hand-picked" legislature.

In this decision Judge Gaston Gunter of the Montgomery City Court was reversed. Judge Gunter held that the Bonner bill restricting the amount of liquor that could be shipped to one person was a violation of the federal and state constitutions, in that it denied to persons inalienable rights granted under these constitutions, such as life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and on further ground that it was an improper application of the state's police power, and violative of the commerce clause of the federal constitution.

In an opinion written by Judge McCallan, Judge Gunter was held to be in error on every point.

Chancellor W. R. Chapman passed upon a similar case in which he issued a temporary injunction restraining the express company from receiving shipments of liquor in excess of amounts specified in the Bonner law. So it will be seen that Chancellor Chapman was sustained and Judge Gunter reversed on the same proposition. It is said that Judge Gunter spoke disparagingly of Chancellor Chapman a number of times on the streets of Montgomery, calling him a young and inexperienced judge, intimating that his youthfulness and lack of knowledge of the law rendered him incapable of rendering a right decision. Judge Gunter must now feel like a jitney since the decision of the "youthful and inexperienced" Chapman is upheld by the Honorable Supreme Court of Alabama.

The anti-chipping law is a good one and if enforced will be a great factor in helping to exterminate the blind tiger.

Elbert Hubbard.

By Frank Crane.

The greatest loss so far to the world in this present carnival of destruction was when Elbert Hubbard was murdered.

He was a distinctive American product. Few men have impressed their personality as he has done upon the general public.

He represented what Americans most admire, the force of personality unaided by organization. He belonged to no sect, cult movement or institution. There was no push of dead men's hands nor dead men's money behind him. What he did was by his unaided, naked soul.

When the magazine editors, who after all are about as conventional as college trustees or church vestries, could not "see" his articles, he published them himself; and the people read them. They "saw" him—a strong, free and debonair mind.

He was the modern heretic, and heretics are what live nations need. Men are constantly en-dowing institutions to perpetuate orthodoxy; but it is the heretic that is eternally in demand.

Although a heretic he was human. The trouble with most heretics is that they become as inhuman as the institutions they oppose.

He wrote on a level with the great public. His style was a marvel of simplicity and brightness.

He did not hesitate to use strong, even profanity and risky stories, occasionally. This offended many, but it attracted more.

The majority of people will pardon anything, so it is not common place. They would rather hear a man say "damn" and be interesting than to read ten magazine pages that are poky.

His ideal was success. His "Message to Garcia" is probably the best extant brochure on efficiency.

He was canny. He had that practical sense most heretics lack. His heresy was almost as profitable as Billy Sunday's orthodoxy. He was not ashamed of his prosperity. His philosophy was somewhat Nietzschean. And he was frank about it.

He had many enemies. But he knew that active enemies are one's best advisers.

Few of us agreed with him. That is why he did us all good. He made us think. A writer you always agree with is of about as much use as a pipe of tobacco.

He did a deal of good by the courage of cheer of his writings. He was an energetic optimist. Thousands loved him and were helped by him.

To his critics we might recite William Watson's judgment on Burns:

Not ours to gauge the more or less,
The will's defeat, the blood's excess,
The earthly passions that oppress
The radiant mind.
His greatness, not his littleness
Concerns mankind.

Was Hubbard a great man? Let us see. There's one way of testing it, perhaps the best way. It is this: Who could take his place? There isn't a college president's place, nor a United States Senator's place, nor a Governor's place, that could not be filled tomorrow if its occupant were removed. There are ten men waiting for almost every man's job in this country, and most any of them could fill it, at least fairly well.

But does anybody know of a man in all the world THAT CAN

CHEAPEST

How often you hear that said about shoes, or clothes, or food.

It's much more true when applied to drugs and drug-store merchandise—on most of which far more vital things depend than mere good looks or pleasure.

Did you ever think of that? When health—perhaps life itself—is in question, the best is not only the cheapest—it's the SAFEST.

You always get THE BEST from us—and it's always the cheapest too, because it always gives the BEST POSSIBLE RESULTS.

And it costs you no more—usually less—than elsewhere.

BOOM IN STAMP COLLECTING

War Has Given Impetus to Growth of Philatelic Hobby

The war is bringing grief to the mills of the philatelists, or at least that branch of the wide and patiently acquisitive family of philatelists composed of stamp collectors. Common canceled postage stamps of the governments which may be blotted out before peace returns are in active demand and the stamps bearing the heads of kings or emperors or the arms of ruling houses that may be put out of office or out of power by the conflict are in great request. Governments that may undergo a great change may, when peace returns, issue new stamps which will lend interest and value to the issues of the present.

Belgian stamps in use up to the outbreak of the war have been pretty thoroughly collected and the stamps carrying mail out of that war-ridden land today are German stamps with a surcharge on their face which shows that they have taken the place of the former Belgian post. In German Samoa the postage stamps of New Zealand, with "Samoa" printed across their face, are in use, and it is likely that in the German islands of the Pacific occupied by the Japanese the postage stamps of Nippon appropriately surcharged are being used. In what was once German New Guinea English stamps are surcharged in a way to show the change of sovereignty in that land.—Washington Star.

RESENTING THE IMPLICATION

Mrs. Morninggall—You're looking better than I had expected. I had heard that your health was very poor.

Mrs. Newgilt—My health has been impaired, but there is nothing poor about us.

INCORRIGIBLE.

"Didn't I see you staring at that pretty girl we just passed?" asked Mrs. Boffels, severely.

"I can't say, my dear," answered Mr. Boffels, glibly. "To tell the truth, I looked at her so hard that I forgot to notice what you were doing."

NOT TO BE THOUGHT OF.

"A little exercise before breakfast gives one a hearty appetite."

"I couldn't risk it," said the commuter.

"Why not?"

"If I worked up an appetite for breakfast it would take time to eat it, and then I'd miss my train."

TRUE HAPPINESS.

Said She—When is a man happiest?

Said He—When he is "next" in a crowded barber shop. When is a woman happiest?

Said She—When she gets "next" to a secret.

SURE.

"Automobile accessories," eh?

"Now, what does that include?"

"The first item I'd put down on the list is money."

DISGRACED.

Weary Willie—Meandering Mike worked a hull day last week.

Dusty Rhoads—Pep, ain't it awful what some people'll do for money?

THE WAY OF IT.

"I understand Bill, who boasted of his ability to make a fortune, managed to get his affairs in a hole."

"Yes; he struck oil."

BATTLE LINE IS LONG ONE

War Being Waged Today Make Those of the Past Appear Little More Shrivelled

Alexander the Great's campaigns, Caesar's wars and Napoleon's three-fold battle front seem limited and almost trivial when viewed in the light of one day's news of the present war. Prussians, Austrians and Slavs struggle in Poland, Galicia and on the slopes of the Carpathian mountains; west, central and eastern France, including Alsace, send reports of armies locked in a fierce struggle; Flanders gives the story of surging masses; the Caucasus witnesses fierce fighting; Persia sends word of a Modest reverse; Turkish troops are routed on the sands of Arabia; Indian mutineers are suppressed on the Malay peninsula, German colonial soldiers are driven from Kamerun, in western equatorial Africa; German East Africa chronicles an engagement; Smyrna, in Asia Minor, is shelled; British and French troops land near Enos, in European Turkey; Mesopotamia sees a rout of Arab tribes in Turkish pay; the northern border of Italy is swarming with Italian regiments; an aerial engagement is fought over the beautiful Rhine; a submarine is sunk off Helgoland; Serbia is reinvaded by Austrians; London awaits the Zeppelins; even our own peaceful Newport News is agitated about the Kronprinz Wilhelm. This is not to Armageddon as earth has even known.—Philadelphia Ledger.

NOT AN EASY THING TO DO

Matter of Training Birds to Sing Depended on Finding a Certain Kind of Wife.

A certain old fellow is as well known for his dry humor as for his success in rearing canaries. Singing contests are of frequent occurrence in the district, and "Old Sam's warblers" appear to be all-conquering.

Not long ago, when the first prize in a contest had once more been carried off by Sam's feathered champion, an unsuccessful competitor approached the old man.

"Look here, Sam," he began. "I wish you'd just give us a hint. I won't let it go any farther. You've a system in training your birds?"

"Well," responded Sam, "it ain't exactly a system—call it assistance."

"What do you mean?"

"Just this," said the old fellow. "Birds talk best when a woman talks."

"The more a woman chunts the better a bird'll sing."

"Yes, but—"

"That's all," remarked Sam. "If ye would train a bird like mine, ye must first find a wife like mine! And," he added, as the other turned away, "that'll mebbe cap yer!"

MODIFIED REQUIREMENT.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I want you to promise not to bet on another horse race."

"All right, but I have a wonderfully straight tip on a horse that runs tomorrow, and the odds won't be less than twenty to one."

"You don't let me finish. What I was going to say is that I don't want you to bet on another horse race after the first of next month."

PERFECTLY PROPER.

Aimee—Hazel has a peculiar way of speaking of her husband.

Mary—Indeed!

Aimee—Yes; she refers to him as her landed property.

Mary—Well, why not? She landed him all right, didn't she?

VERY OFTEN.

"What kind of a horse is the gray mare, pop?"

"As a rule, she's an old nag, sonny."

NOT QUITE CLEAR.

"No," said the soubrette, "I'm not as bad as I am painted."

"Then why don't you quit painting?" asked the low comedian.

COMPENSATION IN KIND.

"If Billy marries the heiress he's after, he will have to toe the maw."

"Perhaps, but he will also be well looked."

AN OPPOSING DEAL.

"What did Jim say about his supposed friends?"

"That if it was a raw deal they cooked up for him."

PARADOXICAL PROOF.

"Do you think he honestly likes my look?"

"I should judge so from his stolen glances at them."

MEAN MINT.

Nell—I could tell you of a lot of men who wanted my hand.

Belle—You must have fared well in the deal.

NATURALLY.

"Tinks says it takes a lot of head-work to run his business."

"What is it?"

"A lady's hairdresser."

WHAT THE SUN-DREAM SAID (As a Beauty Philosopher Interprets It.)

By Frank L. Stanton.

I dreamed of the shadows on the sun
And here's what my Sun-Dream said:
He's shadin' his eyes
In the addened skies
So he won't see the world go dead!
He's seen enough o' the cruel war
Where they know not what they are fightin' for!

II.
They've taken a world for their battleground,
They're makin' a world o' sighs.
Heaven's hands
Of the ravaged lands,
Like God had left the skies!
The stars look on from the fields of space,
Or shrink in shame before God's face.

III.
For men are dying, and women weep
O'er orphaned homes and drear
And holy shrines
In the battle lines
Are wind-blown ashes there.

DOAN'S BALM MAKES YOU SICK. DON'T STAY BILIOUS, CONSTIPATED

"Doan's Balms" will cure you of all the ills that come from biliousness and constipation.

Earth's hope and faith and Heaven's sweet trust
Trampled now in the battle's dust.

IV.
That is the message of the Sun—
The word my Sun-Dream said:
The high stars shrink
From the battle-brink—
The grave where Peace lies dead.
And the shriveled earth may roll away,
With the Lords of War to the Judgment Day.

The Dining Room in the Open

One of the particular charms of life in Europe is that, at the first breath of spring, every one from king to peasant eats out-of-doors. The outdoors is so much a part of the home that the open-air dining room is considered as important as the indoor one. It is really amusing to see, even in London and Paris where space is limited, the ingenious development of some microscopic garden or balcony into a delightful spot where eating is an esthetic joy. A tiled floor, a gay awning, wind-boxes, table and chairs impervious to the weather, and one's banqueting hall is complete.

In sunny Italy, a picturesque grape or wisteria arbor forms the setting for these alfresco reports. Those Germans who live in apartments in the large cities indulge their love of outdoor living in gardens outside the city limits—gardens usually most charming, as the Teuton loves his flowers and spares no trouble to cultivate them. There is always a summer-house where the meals may be served, and the Hausfrau and her hand maids do not apparently begrudge the additional task of conveying the food to this summer garden where every spare moment is spent.

Even in Russia, which to the uninitiated seems a land of perpetual cold, on spring days one breakfasts, lunches, and above all dines in the open; as to the tea hour, one is never afraid to be miles away in the country, for at the opportune moment small children appear as if by magic with the picturesque samovar, and for a mere sou one may be refreshed with a cup of the famous caravan tea, made while you wait.

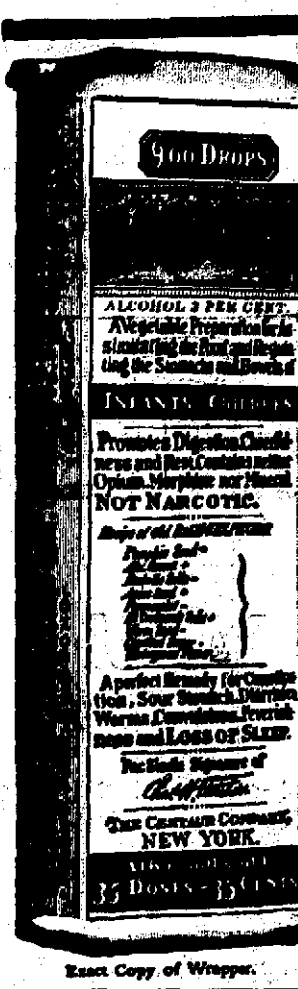

Outdoor meals in any of these countries are served with the greatest simplicity, with as little

WOMEN CAN HARDLY BELIEVE

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eden, Mo.—"I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It is a divine gift."—Mrs. S. T. Hurley, Eden, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere. It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacement, inflammation, chronic, nervous, painful, and other ailments, and has done so by acting on the system.

service on the part of the servant as possible. It is an unforgettable experience to have enjoyed an intimate dinner with, for instance, the Italian royal family. The dinner, which, however, is still extremely simple, is spread in a grape arbor; the servants are dismissed as soon as the dishes are served. Then the king, perhaps, rises to serve one to spaghetti, the prince breaks one a generous piece of pain de menage—breaks, for peasant or epicure alike would consider the touch of the knife a desecration.

Thus the means even of royalty are relieved of much artificiality, and of all unnecessary formality; indeed, they are most esthetic, especially when the sweet course entails picking the grapes from the arbor above. Apropos of this pretty way of serving fruit, at a breakfast given in a Paris garden in the early summer last year the table was built about a dwarf cherry tree laden with fruit, and this fruit the guests, noted scientists and men and women of letters, picked with childish glee.

It has always surprised Europeans that progressive America, with so much sunshine and so many possibilities for this outdoor pleasure, should be so slow to adopt this custom. Who has not experienced being tempted to run out for a week-end in the belief that fresh air and sunshine would make it easier to take up one's work again, the following week? Alas for such dreams! Two-thirds of the day was spent in the dining-room—spacious perhaps, and full of all sorts of electric devices for cooling the atmosphere, yet not the open country for which one was longing, even to the ants and the wasps and the red spiders.

Only a few years ago a physician or two risked the reputation of madness by advocating sleeping porches; today the simplest cottage has this modern touch. Yet, it has remained for the bungalow enthusiast to add a porch called the dining-room. Perhaps this idea was first suggested by the outdoor dining room, which is enlarged the same principle large and small houses alike are today built with out-door dining-rooms, with all sorts of devices for a quick service, new and better methods of keeping the dishes hot, windguards for the candles, and a dozen other aids to comfort.—Exchange.

They Tell us it was Hot Yesterday

In fact we heard numerous persons dilating on the extreme warmth when they entered the sanatorium. We are willing to believe that it was hot, but we know one thing—it was not hot here. We think that a meat shop should be kept cool in the summer and we put our thoughts into action, as those big fans will testify. Our meat stays in the refrigerator and while you are in the shop you stay in the midst of the coolest and most refreshing breezes. Yes, we like to foot our own horn; but you see it isn't all hot air.

BOOM IN STAMP COLLECTING

War Has Given Impetus to Collecting
Men to Which Many Devote Their Time

The war is bringing gird to the mills of the philatelists, or at least that branch of the wide and patiently acquisitive family of philatelists composed of stamp collectors. Common canceled postage stamps of the governments which may be blotted out before peace returns are in active demand and the stamps bearing the heads of kings or emperors or the arms of ruling houses that may be put out of office or out of power by the conflict are in great request. Governments that may undergo a great change may, when peace returns, issue new stamps which will lend interest and value to the issues of the present.

Belgian stamps in use up to the outbreak of the war have been pretty thoroughly collected and the stamps carrying mail out of that war-ridden land today are German stamps with a surcharge on their face which shows that they have taken the place of the former Belgian post. In German Samoa the postage stamps of New Zealand, with "Samoa" printed across their face, are in use, and it is likely that in the German islands of the Pacific occupied by the Japanese the postage stamps of Nippon appropriately surcharged are being used. In what was once German New Guinea English stamps are surcharged in a way to show the change of sovereignty in that land.—Washington Star.

RESENTING THE IMPLICATION

Kind of Wife.

Mrs. Morningcall—You're looking better than I had expected. I had heard that your health was very poor.

Mrs. Newgilt—My health has been impaired, but there is nothing poor about us.

INCORRIGIBLE.

"Didn't I see you staring at that pretty girl we just passed?" asked Mrs. Boffels, severely.

"I can't say, my dear," answered Mr. Boffels, glibly. "To tell the truth, I looked at her so hard that I forgot to notice what you were doing."

NOT TO BE THOUGHT OF.

"A little exercise before breakfast gives one a hearty appetite."

"I couldn't risk it," said the commuter.

"Why not?"

"If I worked up an appetite for breakfast it would take time to eat it, and then I'd miss my train."

TRUE HAPPINESS.

Said She—When is a man happiest?

Said He—When he is "next" in a crowded barber shop. When is a woman happiest?

Said She—When she gets "next" in a secret.

SURE.

"Automobile accessories," eh?

"Now, what does that include?"

"The first item I'd put down on the list is money."

DISGRACED.

Weary Willie—Meandering Mike worked a hull day last week.

Dooty Rhoads—Pep, ain't it awful what some people'll do for money?

THE WAY OF IT.

"I understand Bill, who boasted of his ability to make a fortune, managed to get his affairs in a hole."

"Yes; he struck oil."

WARS BEING WAGED TODAY MAKE THEM OF THE MOST INTERESTING NATURE

More Being Waged Today Make Them of the Most Interesting Nature

Alexander the Great's campaigns, Caesar's wars and Napoleon's three-fold battle front seem limited and almost trivial when viewed in the light of one day's news of the present war. Prussians, Austrians and Slavs struggle in Poland, Galicia and on the slopes of the Carpathian mountains; west, central and eastern France, including Alsace, send reports of armies locked in a fierce struggle; Hindenburg gives the story of surging masses; the Caucasus witnesses fierce fighting; Persia sends word of a Moslem reverse; Turkish troops are routed on the sands of Arabia; Indian mutineers are suppressed on the Malay peninsula, German colonial soldiers are driven from Kameran, in western equatorial Africa; German East Africa chronicles an engagement; Smyrna, in Asia Minor, is shelled; British and French troops land near Enos, in European Turkey; Mesopotamia sees a rout of Arab tribes in Turkish pay; the northern border of Italy is swarming with Italian regiments; an aerial engagement is fought over the beautiful Rhine; a submarine is sunk off Helgoland; Serbia is invaded by Austrians; London awaits the Zeppelins; even our own peaceful Newport News is agitated about the Kronprinz Wilhelm. This is near to Armageddon as earth has ever known.—Philadelphia Ledger.

NOT AN EASY THING TO DO

Matter of Training Birds to Sing On Depended on Finding a Certain
Kind of Wife.

A certain old fellow is as well known for his dry humor as for his success in rearing canaries. Singing contests are of frequent occurrence in the district, and "Old Sam's warblers" appear to be all-conquering.

Not long ago, when the first prize in a contest had once more been carried off by Sam's feathered champion, an unsuccessful competitor approached the old man.

"Look here, Sam," he began. "I wish you'd just give us a hint. I won't let it go any further. You've a system in training your birds?"

"Well," responded Sam, "it ain't exactly a system—call it assistance."

"What do you mean?"

"Just this," said the old fellow. "Birds talk best when a woman talks. The more a woman shouts the better a bird'll sing."

"Yes, but—"

"That's all," remarked Sam. "If ye would train a bird like mine, ye must first find a wife like mine! And," he added, as the other turned away, "that'll mebbe cap ye!"

MODIFIED REQUIREMENT.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Forkins, "I want you to promise not to bet on another horse race."

"All right, but I have a wonderfully straight tip on a horse that runs tomorrow, and the odds won't be less than twenty to one."

"You don't let me finish. What I was going to say is that I don't want you to bet on another horse race after the first of next month."

PERFECTLY PROPER.

Aimee—Hazel has a peculiar way of speaking of her husband.

Mary—Indeed!

Aimee—Yes; she refers to him as her landed property.

Mary—Well, why not? She landed him all right, didn't she?

VERY OFTEN.

"What kind of a horse is the gray mare, pop?"

"As a rule, she's an old nag, sonny."

NOT QUITE CLEAR.

"No," said the soubrette, "I'm not as bad as I am painted."

"Then why don't you quit painting?" asked the low comedian.

COMPENSATION IN KIND.

"If Billy marries the heiress he after, he will have to see the man."

"Perhaps, but he will also be looked."

"What did Jim say about his supposed friend?"

"That it was a raw deal they cooked up for him."

PARADOXICAL PROOF.

"Do you think he honestly likes my looks?"

"I should judge so from his stolen glances at them."

MEAN HINT.

Nell—I could tell you of a lot of men who wanted my hand.

Jelless—You must have fared well in the deal.

NATURALLY.

"Jinks says it takes a lot of head-work to run his business."

"What is it?"

"A lady's hairdresser."
